Turbocharger IHI VF48 For the Impreza WRX STI, the EJ257 engine has a single-displacement turbocharger IHI VF48 RF55, which provided a maximum supercharging ³ 103 kPa ³ (14.93 psi). The EJ257 engine has a semi-closed cover design whereby the cylinder walls were attached to the block at clock positions of ³ twelve, three, six and nine o'Á. The unique ³ belt has round profile teeth for quiet operation and was made of a strong flexible core wire, wear-resistant canvas and heat-resistant rubber. Each camshaft was supported by three supports, held in position ³ three camshaft covers, and have a flange that would fit the corresponding groove in the cylinder head to receive the thrust forces. Since the intake valve ³ n closes at the end of its course, the efficiency of the air intake ³ n is improved and the power is increased. The cast iron cylinder linings for the EJ257 engine were ³ Á Ác Á dry Ác Á Á, meaning its outer surfaces were in complete contact with the cylinder walls. Active valve control system (AVCS): GD Impreza WRX STI For the GD Impreza WRX STI, the EJ257 engine had Subaru's 'Active Valve Control System' (AVCS) that adjusted the timing ³ opening and closing of the intake valves³ changing the phase angle of the camshaft piÁ±Á ³ n with respect to the camshaft within a maximum range of 35 degrees of the ³ ¼. When the engine load increases, the advance of the intake shut-down time ³ uses the inertia of the intake air³ n to create an overload effect; and, Maximum high speed power and engine load: the distribution ³ the intake valves has not been advanced ³ to maximize the overlap ³ n and to use the sweep effect produced by the exhaust gas pulses to ADMISSION AIR IN THE CYLINDER. The connecting rods were made of forged carbon steel, while the pins of the closing cap and the adjustment screws were used for precise coupling. The EJ257 engine had melted aluminum pistons with an aluminum coating for the head of the piston and the ring slots, and a molybdenum coating for the piston skirts. The key specifications of the IHI VF48 turbocharger are given in the table below; For comparative purposes, the Mitsubishi TD04L turbocharger for the GD/GG Impreza WRX with EJ255 engine is also included. In addition, the increased overlap of intake³ and exhaust valves increases exhaust gas recirculation ³ (EGR) to reduce NOx emissions. Cylinder head and camshafts The EJ257 engine has a die-cast aluminum cylinder head ³ was mounted on a cylinder head gasket consisting of three layers of stainless steel plate. In relation ³ to the EJ207 engine, it is understood that the mass of the camshaft for the EJ257 engine was reduced by 1700 grams through the use of hollow shafts and ³ sintered cam loops. The EJ257 engine has a parallel flow cooling system whereby the coolant "huAa into the block under pressure³ n, passed through the joint to the cylinder head and then passed through the adjacent holes each cylinder. To increase wear resistance and anti-friction properties, the noses of the ³ cams bulbs underwent a treatment of " Á frÁo" Á Á . treatment.
